Storm Activities: During the afternoon of 19 February VEPCO power continued to evidence voltage control problems due to storm related line problems remote from our site. The Office of Logistics after checking with OC/Signal Center, OCS, CRS and Operations Center decided to switch to our own KW 2500 "critic" emergency generator--particularly since OCS had one essential operation which had to be run successfully during the night. The changeover was made at 4 p.m.

At approximately 10:30 p.m. I learned from [REDACTED] 25X1A
C/LSD/OL that in addition to himself and several other OL officers most evening watch personnel in all 24-hour installations had decided to stay on through the night. OL provided cots and blankets where needed. On Sunday morning we learned that all overnight operations had worked out satisfactorily. [REDACTED] arranged for the GSI kitchen personnel to provide limited breakfast service in view of the unusual overnight circumstances. Check with OCS Computer Center confirmed completion of their essential task.

Since VEPCO voltage had been stable for hours OL engineers shifted back from our emergency power to commercial power at 10 a.m. following 25X1A coordination with supervisors in the various technical centers.

DOS Morning Summary dated February 20, 1972--attached.

1130 Secured office and left for the day.
